

BILINGUALISM MATTERS ANNUAL EVENT 2019

PROGRAMME

Gaelic matters: research update from Bilingualism Matters

Prof Antonella Sorace is an experimental linguist, specializing in bilingualism across the lifespan, and is also the founding Director of Bilingualism Matters at the University of Edinburgh.

Are we speaking the same language? Hidden bilingualism in Scots speakers

Dr Neil Kirk is a Lecturer in Psychology at Abertay University whose research involves speakers of closely-related language varieties such as English and Scots.

New sign languages: where do we find them, and how do they grow?

Dr Marieke Schouwstra is an evolutionary linguist at the University of Edinburgh who studies the emergence of linguistic structure by observing improvised gesture in the laboratory.

IN BURROWS

In Burrows is mysterious and moving piece about the joys stumbles and frustrations of language, performed in spoken English, translated into BSL. Performed in English by Andy Edwards, translated into British Sign Language by Amy Cheskin

EXHIBITIONS

DISCUSSIONS

NETWORKING

RESEARCH